SMALL STATES DEFENCE AND SECURITY SHALL RISE THROUGH DEFENCE ALLIANCES AND ARMAMENTS COPRODUCTION

Loizou Andreas, Col (ret), representative of HELISS

OBJECTIVE

- The objective of my presentation is to present how Greece and Cyprus should cooperate in the framework of research and coproduction of hi technology armaments.

- Armaments policy is a part of the security policy and also a part in the framework of the countries diplomacy.

BENEFITS

- 1 Financial profit (reduction of the armaments procurements expenses).
- 2 Access in hi-technology research and armaments production.
- 3 Upgrade and increase of their armies' efficiency.
- 4 Increase the county diplomatic position in the geopolitical map.
- 5 Fighting unemployment and creating well paid specialized workers.
- 6. Revitalization of private and state sector companies.

FACTORS INFLUENCES THE COOPERATION

- 1 The constant political situation.
- 2 The constant and healthy diplomatic relations.
- 3 The common national interests.
- 4 Eventually the common threats or the common enemies.

- 5 The internationally acceptable hi level technological research centers and academic institutions.
- 6 Basic industries capability to participate and cooperate in the research and the coproduction of armaments.
- 7 The participation in defense alliances and other international economic organizations.
- 8 Private companies' expectations of financial benefits due to the increasing sales in numbers of countries.
