Turkey's textile industry in crisis

(01/02/2026)

Shuttered factories and lost jobs: Turkey's textile industry is fighting for its life. Exports are dwindling as China and Bangladesh conquer EU markets. Those affected say they don't have much hope for the future.

Riyadh is in talks with Somalia, Egypt and Turkey about two new defense pacts. What impact will they have if they go ahead? Day Twenty-Five of Protests

Once signed, this trilateral deal, dubbed by some as an "Islamic NATO" — which refers to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, or NATO — would combine Pakistani nuclear power with Saudi money and Turkish military strength.

"This would not be a symbolic bloc," Sergio Restelli, an Italian political adviser, author and geopolitical expert, wrote in an op-ed for media outlet The Times of Israel in January. "It would unite ... nuclear capability, control of strategic waterways, expeditionary forces and ideological influence," he said, pointing out that, "combined, these capabilities would create a trans-regional security axis stretching from the eastern Mediterranean through the Red Sea to the Indian Ocean. Such geographic continuity is unprecedented among Muslim-majority powers and would inevitably challenge the current balance maintained through US alliances and informal regional deterrence."

However, for Sami Hamdi, managing director of London-based risk and intelligence company, The International Interest, the underlying dynamics of Saudi Arabia's latest push for defense deals have more to do with the retreating US security umbrella.

"There is a growing view in the region that the US can no longer be depended upon to defend the security of those Gulf states," Hamdi told DW, pointing to 2019 when the US did not respond after an attack by the Yemen-based Houthis on Saudi oil facilities, or to September 2025, when Israel, the closest US ally in the region, attacked the political Hamas leadership in Qatar's capital, Doha.

Late Stalinism in Beijing
(26/01/2026)

- General Secretary Xi Jinping appears to have prevailed in the latest round of military purges in the Central Military Commission (CMC), but only by further dismantling the institutional safeguards that once stabilized elite politics—deepening, rather than resolving, long-term regime fragility.
- The removal of generals Zhang Youxia and Liu Zhenli marks the elimination of the last residual chain of military authority not fully subsumed under the "CMC chairman responsibility system," meaning that military command now begins and ends with Xi personally.
- This consolidation does not alter near-term timelines on Taiwan, but it accelerates political drift in the People's Republic of China toward a late Stalinist disequilibrium in which Xi's personal control is maximized at the cost of orderly succession management, professional and expertise-based authority—exemplified by figures like Zhang Youxia—and tolerance for dissenting or corrective views within the leadership.

Η Γαλλία μεταβαίνει σε «πολεμική οικονομία»: Η Renault θα κατασκευάζει καμικάζι drones

Η γαλλική αυτοκινητοβιομηχανία Renault θα ξεκινήσει την κατασκευή μη επανδρωμένων αεροσκαφών μεγάλης εμβέλειας, βάσει σύμβασης με τη Γενική Διεύθυνση Εξοπλισμών της χώρας. Η παραγωγή θα γίνεται στα εργοστάσιά της στο Le Mans και στο Cléon.

Ο Γάλλος Πρόεδρος Εμανουέλ Μακρόν ζητά από τη γαλλική βιομηχανία να μεταβεί σε αυτό που ο ίδιος αποκαλεί «πολεμική οικονομία». Η Ευρώπη μεταλλάσσεται και η οικονομία της μπαίνει σε νέα μονοπάτια.

Η Renault αποτελεί ένα σπάνιο παράδειγμα μεγάλης ευρωπαϊκής αυτοκινητοβιομηχανίας που εισέρχεται απευθείας στην κατασκευή όπλων. Στόχος είναι η παραγωγή έως και 600 drones μεγάλης εμβέλειας τον μήνα.

The Istanbul Bridge's Important Journey: A New Chapter for the Northern Sea Route
(26/01/2026)

The recent transit of the Istanbul Bridge, a China-linked container ship, through the Russian-controlled Northern Sea Route (NSR) marks an important milestone in the history of Arctic navigation. The vessel departed from the Port of Ningbo on September 22, 2025, and arrived at Felixstowe, United Kingdom, on October 13, 2025. It was the first liner service to traverse the Northern Sea Route (NSR). It demonstrated that the NSR could potentially become part of global container shipping networks, linking Asian manufacturing centers to European markets via the Arctic. But the journey was not without controversy. Environmentalists, maritime safety experts, and Arctic policymakers raised several concerns regarding the

Istanbul Bridge's lack of proper ice-class certification and likely its use of heavy fuel oil—both of which carry serious environmental and safety implications.
